PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

“So, if the reconciliation with Life is a silent melody, how do we make it audible to everybody? Our invitation to humanity is a call to slow down and listen carefully to each other and to Life, for the sake of ourselves and generations to come.”

CARLOS ALVAREZ PEREIRA

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

The Diversity & Inclusion Policy (the «Policy») applies to all directors, managers and other employees of SIT S.p.A. (hereinafter "SIT" or "the Company") and its subsidiaries, as well as to all other subjects (hereinafter also «Recipients») who collaborate with and act in the name and on behalf of the group of companies belonging to SIT S.p.A. («Group»), in all the countries in which the Group operates.

In addition to this Policy, the SIT Group has defined a set of corporate policies, internal procedures and operational processes that integrate the Policy and that may be applicable in your work. The Policy must be read and interpreted from the perspective of the Company's policies. These policies are an integral part of the Policy and can be found on the SIT website (www.sitcorporate.it) and on the company intranet (We@SIT)

In defining its corporate policies in line with its Mission and Vision, SIT is inspired by the highest international standards of reference and «best practices»

By the term «Recipients», we mean all the «stakeholders» of the Group, including, by way of non-exhaustive example:

- Shareholders, investors, financiers;
- Customers;
- Suppliers, subcontractors and business partners;
- Professionals and external consultants
- Governments, Public Administrations, Institutions, Regulators;
- Trade Unions and Trade Associations;
- Media, Universities and Research Centres

SIT also encourages its employees to actively work to detect and prevent improper conduct.

If there is reason to believe that any employee - including managers - has violated, may violate or act in a manner that violates a law or provision of the Policy and Code of Conduct, it is required to report it through the reporting mechanisms established by the Company and as outlined in the group's Whistleblowing Policy, which should be referred to for detailed procedures.

DIVERSITY & INCLUSION FOR SIT AND AROUND THE WORLD

DIVERSITY & INCLUSION: FOR SIT AND AROUND THE WORLD

Inclusion for SIT is the enhancement of every single person, unique in its diversity, which is a constant source of wealth, energy and innovation for the Company.

Inclusion is substantiated in the creation of a working environment and a society that sees personal differences as a value, and in which all have equal access to opportunities and resources and are treated with equal respect.

SIT includes and values diversity, considering it as a source of generativity and resource to guarantee an organization that is virtuous when the work environment aims at equity, inclusion and merit.

The integrity of policies and of everyone's actions and results is based on the physical and psychological well-being of each of the people employed by the company as well as the network of people on whom the company's business impacts.

Well-being, motivation, engagement, sense of belonging and, consequently, productivity, inevitably pass through feeling respected and valued even in one's individuality.

It is from these premises that the idea of creating a Diversity & Inclusion Policy was born with the aim, on the one hand, to spread even more and in an organic way the strategic role that Diversity and Inclusion have in the management of people, and, on the other hand, to clearly outline the mission, strategies and active practices of the company to foster a collaborative, inclusive and respectful working environment.

DIVERSITY & INCLUSION: FOR SIT AND AROUND THE WORLD

This Policy is in line with the provisions of our other Corporate Policies, collective bargaining, on national and corporate level, and in accordance with the provisions of national, European and international industry regulations, as well as the international organisations that have dealt with the issue, including at a transversal level, including, just to name a few, the United Nations Organization, which, in the context of the 2030 Agenda and its Sustainable Development Goals, have indicated "decent work" as a direct tool to reduce substantial inequalities and foster inclusion through the enhancement of diversity, and the International Labour Organization (c.d. "ILO - International Labour Organization") which, among other things, published a practical guide on the promotion of diversity and inclusion through the c.d. "working adjustments" in the workplace.

DIMENSIONS OF THE D&I

THE DIMENSIONS OF DIVERSITY & INCLUSION

The dimensions of diversities

Given that it is difficult to draw up an exhaustive list of all the possible declinations of diversity, a scheme that can help SIT and its people to orient themselves in the field of D&I and to classify in an exemplary way the dimensions of diversity and its peculiarities, is the c.d. "4 level model" developed by Lee Gardendswartz and Anita Rowe, Diversity & Inclusion experts, in 1994.

Taking this model as a reference, SIT, on the one hand, is committed to ensuring respect for all possible dimensions of diversity, promoting the sharing of differences, both in the context of its business, increasingly oriented to the exchange of experiences between different realities, also at international level, both within their own workforce, and, on the other hand, asks its people to adopt an increasingly transversal vision, open to multi-level dialogue and based on proactivity and organizational and social cooperation.

PERSONALITY

EXTERNAL DIMENSION

ORGANIZATIONAL DIMENSION

Personality

The dimension linked to the personality of each of us, definable as the group of characteristics that are part and are directly related to the identity of a person, is cared by SIT in every moment of the working relationship, in order to promote the full realisation of workers, both as individuals and in the context of social formations (including the working environment) in which their respective personalities take place and, at the same time, in total respect of their inviolable rights.

Inner Dimension

The inner dimensions and characteristics of a person, as age, gender, physical abilities, ethnic group, sexual preferences, etc., affect individual behaviour.

Usually this is the space in which stereotypes and prejudices are formed (sometimes even unconscious, c.d. "unconscious bias") that SIT is committed to preventing and fighting mainly through educational and cultural tools.

Without claiming to be exhaustive, since this area is the object of continuous evolution, attention and discipline, also by the Company, here are the main areas in which the commitment of SIT in relation to the "Inner Dimension" of Diversity.

THE DIMENSIONS OF DIVERSITY & INCLUSION

Inner Dimension

Gender: SIT's constant commitment to promoting gender equality is reflected in its commitment to employees, customers and stakeholders to promote issues related to gender equality.

SIT is, in fact, increasingly positioning itself on the market as a conveyor and promoter agent of gender equality in the workplace, implementing inside and advertising outside, the deployment of activities and initiatives aimed at promoting equal opportunities, work-life balance, sharing family responsibilities and removing potential barriers, stereotypes, discrimination and/or prejudice, including those related to sexual orientation.

Interculturality : In line with its principles, SIT is constantly committed to promoting the exchange between different cultures, both within its business, increasingly oriented to the exchange of best practices between different realities and internationalization, both within their own workforce, promoting an intercultural vision open to dialogue at multiple levels and based on organisational and social cooperation.

This work style facilitates, at the same time, both the competitive development of organizational, technical and procedural solutions to improve and identify the positioning of the Company on the market, and the encounter between people of different cultures, as a stimulus for exchange, innovation and growth, including at individual level.

THE DIMENSIONS OF DIVERSITY & INCLUSION

Inner Dimension

Generations: The Company recognizes and values integrated strategies for the development and management of the needs of the different generations that collaborate within the organization itself, with the aim of promote dialogue and intergenerational confrontation.

SIT's focus is not only on the age and professional background of workers, but also on finding effective ways to facilitate their development, encouraging the exchange of different social, cultural and work experiences, as well as the different soft and hard skills, knowledge and skills (such as digital ones) belonging to each generation.

Disability: The Company believes in equal opportunities for all its people, regardless of any sensory, cognitive and/or motor disabilities and is therefore committed to implementing concrete measures to promote the integration and inclusion of people with disabilities, in order to fully encourage the development of their respective talents and capabilities, through the removal of cultural, sensory and physical barriers, also through the adaptation of working environments, in order to make them accessible to everyone, and the adoption of appropriate initiatives, tools and aids (c.d. “reasonable accommodation”).

External Dimension

The third dimension of Diversity is characterised by “secondary” factors, over which the individual has greater control, having, in relation to them, greater freedom of choice. Some of these dimensions are leisure activities, education, marital status, work experience, place of residence, etc.. Even the mentioned dimensions have an influence on individual behaviour, perceptions and attitudes and, also in relation to these dimensions, the Company is committed to pay particular attention, respecting the dignity and confidentiality of everyone.

Organizational Dimension

The fourth level of Diversity concerns organizational dimensions such as working environment, company seniority, workplace, level of grading, etc..

SIT’s commitment is to enhance each individual in his professional and personal growth and development, within a healthy, safe and stimulating work environment, in which everyone, regardless of individual differences and in respect of their dignity, have the opportunity to reach their full potential, thereby developing a culture of sustainability and inclusion.

OUR CONCRETE COMMITMENT

D&I Culture

Continuous Listening

SIT has undertaken a process of improvement of its working environment starting from the climate among colleagues and from the harmony in the Company, engaging in listening to its people with the predisposition of surveys. The survey given every two years is aimed at Italian employees, blue collars and white collars and aims to measure the degree of trust and the perception that people have towards the Organization and those who represent it.

In particular, the surveys also investigate the Diversity & Inclusion Index that measures the experience of people within the Organization on:

- Equal treatment
- No discrimination based on personal characteristics
- Inclusive atmosphere
- Psychological security guaranteed by the Company
- Perception of the possibility of balancing personal life and professional activity

The Continuous Listening is substantiated in SIT also in the organization of periodic events of "Town Hall" involving the Management and the corporate population. During these events, it is open the discussion on issues that affect the company strategy and the future of the organization and in which are collected any feedback, comments or suggestions for improvement by people.

Based on these results, SIT is building programs for the evolution of working conditions and support for people with a focus also on D&I policy.

ATTACHMENT 1 – Towards a more inclusive communication- Tips

- WHO: *WE are all in this together.

Respect for people also passes through the use of an inclusive language, which respects the diversity and peculiarities of who we are dealing with. Let us always remember to put ourselves in the shoes of others and that the sensitivity that we do not show today is what we might want from others tomorrow.

- HOW: *The form is substance.

Communication is not an enclosure in itself with respect to the contents conveyed. Communication often guarantees and, at the same time, promotes the content itself. Let's take care of the quality of "how" we communicate, as much as we take care of the "thing" we communicate. How?

- Let's tell our ideas trying to be simple and clear, with the aim of being understood; always give the necessary information but try to avoid unnecessary technicalities.
- Let's use alternative languages and communication tools, including images, videos, subtitles, presentations, etc...
- Let's compare our selves. Exchange and discussion value the free expression of ideas, regardless of hierarchies and roles: let's facilitate communication, answer questions, become available to provide clarification, welcome the criticism and use it to improve and change our point of view, find exciting, hospitable, inclusive words, such as to create a common ground and build valuable relationships.

ATTACHMENT 1 – Towards a more inclusive communication- Tips

- Aggression is a barrier, the enemy of exchange and constructive communication, it is humiliating and fruitless. By insulting, you prove to have no better arguments. Let's respond to hostile attacks with kindness.
- If we are not sure, just ask: a clarification is better than a misunderstanding.
- Let's remain silent when necessary: silence can help to give right-minded answers at the right time and is itself an important communication tool.
- Let's put people in first place and always turn to those in front of us, trying to remember the names of the interlocutors, putting the individual above his characteristics, without mentioning gender, sexual orientation, religion or origins.
- Whenever possible, let's adapt languages to give space to both the feminine and masculine forms, or use neutral terms, like “person”, “team”, “corporate population”.
- Let's avoid irrelevant gender statements.
- Let's avoid referring to a person's condition as "normal" as opposed to that of another person: the use of the word “normal” for a comparison group can stigmatize people who are different and imply that they are “abnormal”.

ATTACHMENT 1 – Towards a more inclusive communication- Tips

- Let's not underestimate mental health. Terms that describe psychological or psychiatric issues (such as “depression” or “bipolarism”) should not be misused.

- WHERE: Even if virtual, it's real.

Every word, even if online and communicated through digital tools, has concrete consequences and can build or undermine real relationships. When communicating and sharing, remember: select and evaluate sources and content, never spread false or confidential information or news, respect the privacy and confidentiality of all.

- WHEN: Who has time does not wait time (or maybe not?).

The organization and the ability to give instant feedback is one of the fundamental skills of any Smart Worker. However, at the same time, too hasty answers risk limiting or preventing listening and comparison.

Let us remember that there is a time to listen, a time to reflect and a time to respond.

- WHY: Actions have consequences, but also words.

Our words have a weight, for us and for the company: you need to be aware of them and take responsibilities.

ATTACHMENT 2 – Gender Equity in Panels - Guidelines

MANIFESTO - No Women, No Panel - Senza Donne Non Se Ne Parla.

To promote a balanced and equal representation in the panels of corporate events organized by SIT.

- Premise

Too often we attend events such as conferences, debates, round tables, events, etc... in which only members of a certain gender are sent to speak and are, therefore, represented. Gender that, in most cases, is the male one. This is the phenomenon of the so-called "manel", that is, "all male panel", that is, panels composed only of men. This mono-gender composition is often the result of bias, both unconscious and sometimes perfectly aware, which leads to relegating the female gender in a corner which, on the occasions mentioned above, and especially in those of a scientific nature, tends to be underrepresented.

This is why SIT S.p.A. has decided to actively participate in the change of an obsolete system and to adhere to the manifesto "No Women No Panel - Senza Donne Non Se Ne Parla", promoted both at European and national level and that, moreover, has seen the progressive adhesion of various institutions and organizations throughout Italy, for an equal and balanced representation of the genders in all the activities organized and realized by the company.

ATTACHMENT 2 – Gender Equity in Panels - Guidelines

- Guidelines

These Guidelines are intended to promote in the events organized and realized by the company, such as, by way of example, roundtables, conferences, debates, events, etc... the balanced and plural participation of women and men, ensuring the setting up of panels in which both genders are represented to the greatest extent possible equal and balanced.

To this end, all of SIT's people, each for their own competences and responsibilities, undertake to: :

- organize and implement events that respect the corporate principles of Diversity and Inclusion and Gender Equality, that are respectful of the personal, cultural and professional dignity of women and men, and their specificity, skills and identity;
- inform all possible managers, speakers and participants, through fair communication tools of initiatives, without diversification of invitations;
- ensure that panel speakers are equally represented by gender in all areas, including scientific and STEM subjects, except where participation is attributable to specific and/or institutional roles;
- ensure that the space and relevance recognised by the speakers are the same, and that the under-represented gender is not relegated to roles of mere presentation and/or representation;

ATTACHMENT 2 – Gender Equity in Panels - Guidelines

- always consider, in the participation in the panels, that the way in which people of different kinds are represented spreads models and contents that are not stereotyped, non-discriminatory and not degrading and/or damaging to human dignity, also based on issues related to Diversity & Inclusion and Gender;
- ensure equal access to information for all and the possibility of full, free and effective communication;
- use, in the elaboration of texts and in the choice of images, a language that is not sexist and not stereotyped, but inclusive, in accordance with the Code of Ethics, the Diversity & Inclusion Policy;
- organize each event according to criteria of inclusiveness, ensuring the widest reconciliation between life and working time of/of the participants; to this end: the schedules of events should be as compatible as possible with the times of private life and family care; it will be facilitated as much as possible the participation of the speaker also at distance in videoconference;
- raise awareness of equal and plural balance in all contexts in which these Guidelines may extend their value range (e.g. working groups, technical committees, expert delegations, etc...);
- enhance and share any other further and possible best practices and experience developed in their professional field to give concrete implementation to the principle of gender equity within the panels of corporate events.

ATTACHMENT 2 – Gender Equity in Panels - Guidelines

SIT will periodically monitor compliance with these Guidelines and the subsequent dissemination of the results.

All of SIT's people declare themselves, for this purpose, willing to collaborate for the collection of data on the participation in the events organized and realized by the company, with the indication distinguished by gender and role.

ATTACHMENT 3 – Training and valorisation of resources

With the broader objective of supporting the sustainable growth of its people regardless of individual differences and with respect for their dignity, SIT guarantees fair access to opportunities and resources exclusively on the basis of their knowledge, qualifications, skills, performance and motivation, regardless of any other personal condition.

Personnel assigned to the various tasks/activities are chosen on the basis of their skills, experience, training and qualifications that characterise their professional sphere.

The aims of personnel training are defined according to the enhancement of professional skills, refresher training, systematic improvement of knowledge and skills in order to guarantee the professional skills necessary to perform the respective tasks and activities, access to internal development and career opportunities, the pursuit of the organisation's objectives, customer satisfaction and the set quality standards.
